

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5 A trigger generator for supplying a trigger signal to a medical device. The generator includes a respiratory signal device associated with the subject that generates a respiratory signal representing the flow of gas into and out of the subject's lungs during the subject's breathing cycle. A trigger generator integrates the respiratory signal and generates a trigger signal when the integrated respiratory signal has a value representing a selected point in the subject's breathing cycle.